Welcome

Our ninth festival continues to place visual art at the heart of the Edinburgh summer festival experience, with an unparalleled offering of major exhibitions by leading international artists and the opportunity to discover the best early career artists in some of the city's most exciting new spaces.

With over 45 exhibitions across the city, the festival invites you to experience first hand the best new work by Scottish and international contemporary artists, and to consider that work in the broader context of some of the most significant artists and art historical moments of previous centuries.

This year's commissions programme – our most ambitious to date – brings new work into public spaces across the city and invites visitors to look anew at Edinburgh's iconic cityscape.

With venues and commissions spread across the length and breadth of the city, it is hardly surprising that walking has always been an essential part of the Edinburgh Art Festival experience. Every walker needs a good map and we are delighted to bring you our second artist commissioned map, created by New York based graphic artist Peter Arkle, with support from anCnoc. Born and raised in Penicuik, Arkle has populated the map with remembered images of his experience of the city from his time growing up in Edinburgh.

The festival map is accompanied by a guide giving detailed information on all of the exhibitions in our programme. This is freely available at the Edinburgh Art Festival pavilion and in all of our participating venues, and can also be downloaded from our website. The majority of exhibitions and events in the festival are free but the map and the guide give full details of ticket prices, where these apply.
